

Lightning

Ken Meter

My backbones rumble in the heavens.
Whipped like a rattler's tail
They quiver on a thread of light,
Plunge deep into the mud.

The pulsing earth sends a shudder and hiss
Through the eaves of my house.
This scalpel of light
Slices my serpent skin.